With a positive outlook and lots going on in and around Beverley everyone should be kept entertained during the holidays. If you like sport then to keep you entertained, Wimbledon, which begins 3rd July, or throughout July, the Tour de France or cricket Ashes series.

If you like the outdoors then look to discover the public walkways, play games on the Westwood, or venture further on the bikes and enjoy a picnic in pastures new. Do not forget "Bevfest", which is certain to be a great day for everyone.

Have a great July and whatever you get up to, enjoy the outdoors and have a great Summer ahead.

Julian.

Happy July readers! I trust everyone is enjoying the sunshine as much as I am and hoping there's lots more sunshine to enjoy this month.

Apart from the continuous flow of ice creams that will be coming in my direction to build up to It's National Ice Cream Day on the 16th July, I am looking forward to the FIFA Women's World Cup in Australia and New Zealand, running from Thu, 20 July 2023 - Sun, 20 August 2023.

I am sure everyone will be getting behind the Lionesses. Fingers crossed they will come home as champions and women's football continues to grow.

I hope you have some wonderful things planned for July, remember to stay safe and apply sun cream.

AUCTION OF RARE ANCIENT ARTIFACTS TO HELP SAVE BEVERLEY CHURCHES

500-year-old stone pinnacles, ironwork and wooden panels to go under the hammer this Summer and could attract a global internet audience.

Crumbling parts of two ancient Beverley churches that have been removed and replaced by new components are to go under the hammer in a unique fundraising auction.

Proceeds will benefit the Two Churches One Town charity which has a target to raise £20-million to save the ancient fabric of Beverley Minster and St Mary's from falling into dangerous disrepair.

Television personality and local auctioneer Caroline Hawley, who appears on national TV shows such as the BBC's Bargain Hunt, is coordinating the lots by Hawley Auctioneers.

Caroline said: "I'm so excited to be working on this auction to help secure the future of these two magnificent buildings in my home county of East Yorkshire. They're of great importance and are recognised for their outstanding architecture, not only in this country but also around the world."

Beverley Minster Old Fund which is organising the charity auction on Saturday 8th July 2023 in the South Transept of Britain's biggest parish church. Its former chair, Martin Needler explained: "Over the years the churches of St Mary's and The Minster in Beverley have accumulated several items which are surplus to requirements. Items such as the old stone pinnacles, wood from the roof, 19th century oak pews along with iron gates and much more. These will be auctioned off to provide funding towards the urgent restoration of both churches".

"There is a need for £20m to cover the work on both churches to prevent them falling into disrepair and having to close their doors. We are delighted to have Caroline Hawley manage the auction for us.

Tim Carlisle, chairman of the Two Churches One Town charity emphasized: "There is a wonderful film available on our website which explains just how special Beverley and the two churches are (www.beverleytwochurches.com) and we want to push that message out to the rest of the world and encourage people to help us fundraise to keep the buildings safe, open and free to visit for residents and international visitors alike."

The day prior to the auction, on Friday 7th July, the Minster will be open to enable everyone to view all the auction items from 10am to 6pm.

Viewing will also be available on the day of the auction from 8am to 10am on Saturday 8th July.

The auction at Beverley Minster will also be open to global bids using two internet platforms to attract a worldwide audience.

HERCULES FLYPAST OVER BEVERLEY RACECOURSE

A few years ago, the UK government decided to withdraw the C-130 Hercules aircraft from RAF service and, more recently, a date of 30th June 2023 was set for this event.

Historically, the Hercules aircraft entered service in 1966 and has been the 'workhorse' of the RAF ever since; be it moving troops around operational areas, transporting supplies and equipment into humanitarian situations or dropping parachutists from the UK's Special Forces. Eventually, as the numbers of Hercules still flying were gradually reduced, one squadron remained; that being Number 47 Squadron.

This particular squadron has a distinguished history having operated in all theatres of operations during the last thirty years; be it in Iraq, Afghanistan or in a multitude of other military operations around the world. Recently, the squadron's Hercules aircraft were seen on our national TV news programmes evacuating UK citizens from the war in Sudan; this being their last major humanitarian operation - although it has been stated that the squadron will be on standby right up until the last day of June.

The significance of all of this is that Number 47 Squadron was actually formed in Beverley on 1st March 1916 and, consequently, the round-Britain fly-past on 14th June was scheduled to include a fly-past of three Hercules aircraft directly over the site of the original Royal Flying Corps airfield on the north-western edge of Beverley racecourse. I am sure that those who witnessed the three aircraft thundering over the Westwood at low-level would have been suitably impressed.

It is now my intention, having flown in this squadron's aircraft for almost thirty years of my service career, to have a memorial plaque or plinth commissioned and placed in some prominent location in the town to record the squadron's proud history and its historical association with the town of Beverley. This, hopefully, in conjunction with the cooperation and assistance of Beverley Town Council, will come to fruition sometime later this year.

HOB'S - SHAKING THINGS UP IN BEVERLEY

At Just Beverley we enjoy good news and great achievements from people who work and live in and around Beverley.

This month we put 8 questions to Joe Welsh, MD of HOB's. Having transformed The Travellers Rest into a popular cocktail bar. They now celebrate their 1st Anniversary.

1. What attracted you to the premises and why a cocktail bar?

The features of the original building are gorgeous. The old original brick work, wooden beams and open fire place really give our venue a nice traditional look with a modern twist. The moment me and Josh viewed the premises we had a flood of ideas what we could do with the venue.

2. What are the most popular cocktails and what makes them special?

Our original cocktail with a Twister ice lolly is proving popular now summer is here. The drink is watermelon based with citrus fruits and some elderflower liquor. Our 'creative' drinks are always bespoke recipes. We spend a lot of time getting the balance of flavours right, so this makes our drinks very special.

3. What are your ambitions in business?

I think me and Josh would really like to see HOB'S expand into other locations. We both love the idea of a 'speak easy' bar that serves cocktails and possibly a little Greek food... but no plans are in the pipeline just yet.

4. Do you have seasonal cocktails, how do you keep your menu fresh?

Last winter we had a North American themed menu with lots of flavours inspired from those areas of the world. Josh and Klaudia often create bespoke drinks for our menu and the last 2 menus have proven very popular.

5. How do you start the day?

A strong coffee and a walk on the Beverley Beck. I do a lot of networking with local businesses, so generally a lot of emailing and trying to organise our events such as live comedy and pub quizzes.

6. How do you choose your playlist for the bar and what music do you like?

We originally had a lot of funk and jazz music at the bar. But now we are getting busier and busier we play a lot more upbeat music to try and match the energy in the room. Me personally, I like heavy rock and indie music, so I don't think customers would appreciate my playlist.

7. Do you judge a book by its cover and how do you describe yourself in one sentence?

No I never judge. I would describe myself as very relaxed and I try to bring out the best in people/businesses. Now HOB'S has an established platform I focus on bringing small independent food brands to help them reach more people and sell more products to help boost their business.

8. Can you share any interesting stories related to cocktails or HOB'S and why eight questions?

Running a cocktail bar can be crazy, me and Josh have met loads of interesting people from professional wrestlers, footballers and famous comedians from the television. 8 questions? Well because generally people work 8 hours a day but I'm a massive workaholic so it reminds me that's not who I am.

FROM TRAVELLERS REST TO HOB'S

When we first got the keys to House of Bevs the room was just an empty shell. It needed a lot of renovation work to create what it is today.

The Travellers Rest was a successful business with a solid reputation, but we wanted to breathe new life into the building and put our own twist on creating something new that Beverley didn't already have... a traditional cocktail bar.

Myself and Josh wanted to create a business that would allow the community to socialise, enjoy traditional cocktails and enjoy themselves in a safe and relaxing environment.

We have built up a solid foundation of 'raving fans'.

We have become known for our entertainment evenings such as hosting Beverley's live comedy club (every first Monday of the month).

The comedy is organised by Mike Linwood who we have built a really strong relationship with over the last year or so.

The year has had its low points such as getting burgled and a few issues with the local council here and there. But we always bounce back and it's been a wild ride the past 12 months with some unforgettable memories.

We are hosting a private 1 year birthday for HOB's on the 15th July so our friends and family can enjoy the space we have created with some live music, comedy and good drinks.

We are focusing on our quiz night (every Thursday) currently and having kitchen takeovers with other local food companies.

When we opened our doors last summer we hit the ground running with some packed out weekends with people wanting to try the 'new venue' in town. We very quickly established our brand as expert bartenders and the place to be if you are wanting a quirky drink in an aesthetically pleasing venue.

This summer we have been hitting some record figures and the hype around the venue is still very much alive.

This now only allows us to switch the menu and keep it fresh, but it also gives other local independents the chance to reach new people and generate more revenue for their own business.

We know how hard it is to keep a small business alive and thriving, so we collaborate with other businesses as frequently as we can.

I'VE BEEN THINKING... SAYS COLIN RAYNOR

I think I was about fifteen years old when I realised that stamp collecting had to be taken very seriously because, if you played your cards right, there was money to be made in philately.

I'd gone through the earlier years of swops with my mates and filling albums with stamps held in place by a hinge which enabled me to keep the stamps free of damage. I also realised that I could look at page after page of stamps and tell, in an instant, if I had all of them or was there one I hadn't got and could I perhaps effect a swop.

The stamp collector's bible was published annually by Stanley Gibbons with everything you needed to know about stamps. My friend Peter was as keen as I was about stamp collecting and we would spend hours talking about stamps. He specialised in stamps with trains on but my specialism was Canadian stamps, because my parents had lived there for a time.

Canada has a number of national emblems e.g. the maple leaf, the Canadian horse and the beaver. For some reason the beaver only became a national emblem in 1975 (I think Beverley had a beaver on their coat of arms many years before).

The previously mentioned Stanley Gibbon company would send me detailed information about stamps printed in Canada. For serious collectors, the history of stamps is just as compelling as any information about new stamps and they are constantly on the lookout for details of stamps being printed with mistakes, which puts them into the rare category.

Stamps may have been printed with a building upside down or a word misspelt. Such mistakes were soon rectified but not before a number had gone into circulation. The value of these stamps escalated and one of these Gibbon's information sheets gave details of a Canadian stamp showing a beaver which had been printed in blue instead of brown. The mistake had been quickly spotted but a small number had gone in to circulation and the price of such a rare stamp had risen as years went by.

It was then I had my 'eureka' moment. Surely among all my stamps from Canada I could recall having a stamp with a beaver on and I was certain it was blue. Delving in to my numerous albums I eventually found the beaver stamp that I remembered I had, and it was blue. I looked again at the information sheet. The projected figure to buy this stamp was already in to the thousands. Surely it couldn't be, or could it? I needed to talk to someone about it. I was still in touch with Peter and I felt sure he would know about my blue beaver.

He had seen an item in a newspaper about this beaver stamp and was thrilled to hear my news. But his next words burst my bubble.

"So, you've got one of those 10 cent blue beaver stamps. You jammy devil."

"Did you say a 10 cent stamp?" said I, with a sense of foreboding in my gut.

"Oh yes, it is definitely the 10 cent one you need. They should have been printed in brown with only the 5 cent ones in blue."

I put the phone down and just sat and looked at my stamp with the blue beaver on and 5 cent in one corner. I looked again at the Gibbon's information sheet and it was all there and I had misread it. The dream was good while it lasted but stamp collecting was always about more than just money, wasn't it?

The garden is an ideal place to start with macro photography at this time of year. The abundance of flowers and insects gives you a wide variety to photograph.

Macro photography is also great for exploring a whole other layer of nature which you might otherwise overlook.

There are advanced photography techniques for macro and extreme macro photography such as focus stacking, but I like to keep things simple and just use a single shot of a subject in its environment. Here is how I take my photos using a 150mm macro lens.

Because the subjects are so small, depth of field is critical, so I usually use an aperture of f14 or higher to ensure as much of the subject is in focus as possible.

You also need a shutter speed of at least 1/250th for insects. This means you need light! Bright sunshine is great, but a flash gun and diffuser are also helpful. I recommend continuous focusing, as even in the slightest breeze, the subjects will likely be moving around and soon be out of focus again.

Most importantly, go and photograph things you find interesting whether that's flowers or insects and once you're happy with your photos in the garden go and visit different habitats and you'll be amazed at what you'll find.

You can find more information about my work and full portfolios on my website and my social media pages and if you have any questions don't hesitate to get in touch.

NAVIGATION WEALTH MANAGEMENT - PLANNING FOR RETIREMENT

You'll always remember those life-changing moments: meeting the person who becomes your partner, the birth of your children, collecting the keys to your first home.

How about later, when you finally pay off your mortgage? Will you remember that?

Completing the repayments on your mortgage is a major personal achievement; you may have spent 25 years or more setting aside income, considering interest rates and calculating mortgage deals. And while this landmark may be less romantic than that first date, in many ways it's no less life-changing.

Not only will you own outright what is probably your biggest asset, you also will have access to a sizeable sum each month that previously was earmarked for your lender. And while it might be tempting to use this newfound cash on a holiday, a car or a home extension, it's a golden opportunity to talk to an adviser to review your current budget, savings and retirement plans to see if you're using it most effectively.

Review your finances

There's every reason to celebrate when you pay off a mortgage, so why not see it as a great opportunity to review your finances? There's a good chance when you pay off a mortgage that you're approaching peak earnings, family expenses may ease if children have grown up, and sometimes income is augmented by an inheritance or savings maturing. It's a perfect time to refocus. However, paying off a mortgage doesn't always translate into increased saving.

Spend some time thinking about how best to use those extra hundreds of pounds per month that are freed up by no longer having mortgage payments. The amount per month may seem relatively modest, so it's easy to allow it to merge into a household budget or day-to-day spending. Yet think how powerful that same amount could be if you invested or saved it over a longer period - and you wouldn't miss it, as you've had to pay the mortgage monthly for the past 25 years anyway.

Plan for your retirement

As with all financial planning, it's never too early to start thinking about how to balance paying off your mortgage with saving for retirement. If, for example, you pay off your mortgage at 57 and work until you're 66, you will have nine years of monthly savings to contribute towards your retirement.

And if that retirement is the long one to which we all aspire, those additional funds may be vital. If you are a 50-year-old man of average health today, the Office for National Statistics life expectancy calculator suggests you will live until the age of 84; if you are a 50-year-old woman with the same reasonable health, you are forecast to live until 87.

That would mean there are many years after retirement that will need to be funded - whether you're just taking life a little easier, starting a brand new business, or fulfilling ambitions for travel, your family or other personal passions.

Now consider how the money freed up by paying off your mortgage can have an impact: If you save £500 per month after a mortgage term has expired, this will add up to £60,000 over 10 years - possibly significantly more depending on how it is invested and allowing for tax relief on your contributions.

The importance of advice

Even if you wait until your mortgage is nearing its full term before considering future options, it's sensible to have a financial adviser in your corner. They can help you navigate through the different choices if you're not sure where to start, and help your money to work as hard as it can.

Not only will they check up on your short-and long-term savings and spending needs, and the current state of your pensions, ISAs, investments and other assets, an adviser can also look at the most tax-efficient use of the extra money to achieve your retirement goals, for example increasing your pension contributions or making better use of ISA allowances.

Or, if you prefer to consider other priorities, expert guidance can help here, too. Remember that monies freed up after a mortgage is paid off need not go solely into investment just to maximise personal gain.

Many will now want to use it for their children, for older dependents, or to simply enjoy themselves through travel and comfort as they get older. But a balance between these desires, coupled with informed and dispassionate advice will give you the confidence that your finances will support your choices for as long as they are needed.

A financial adviser can help you assess your spending and also advise on wider issues such as optimising your inheritance planning for your loved ones. This is another critical element to remember as you enjoy that warm feeling of truly owning your own home - with no mortgage to pay.

NORTHMEN SPIRIT - EXCLUSIVE PRODUCTS

The month of June saw us launch two exclusive products in the town of Beverley.

Vanaheim Whisky from Norway was a very limited release that saw our Bottleshop host an opportunity for whisky lovers to try this unique whisky before buying a pre-allocated bottle.

Other online retailers sold out of this whisky in less than fifteen minutes but we were determined that the people of Beverley and East Yorkshire should be able to buy this amazing product in person.

A super smooth whisky with apple pie aromas and hints of cinnamon this is truly a unique drinking experience. We plan on repeating this event in November when the eighth release from the Distillery arrives in the UK, for now though Vanaheim is available behind the Bar.

Our second exclusive launch saw the delivery of the Yorkshire Aperitif Sommer, a Rhubarb and Raspberry alternative to the Italian Spritz.

This distinctly fruity take on the bittersweet aperitif is an uplifting blend of rhubarb and raspberry, tangy with a burst of sweetness and a refreshing bitter finish.

Use the classic 3 parts sparkling wine, 2 parts aperitif and 1 part soda to make this amazingly refreshing cocktail.

As a local business we always love supporting other local businesses and after having a range of cans from Belschnickel Brewery (located in the Avenues area of Kingston upon Hull) we were very pleased to get their latest brew of the Session IPA Hullywood on our Bar at the beginning of the month, brewed that week, kegged on the Thursday we had the first pint poured on Friday afternoon for an amazingly fresh hoppy treat.

We hope to repeat this in the future so that you too can experience the delight of freshly brewed local beers.

At NORTHMEN SPIRIT and BAR SEVEN93 we stock a range of beers, spirits and wines to please most palates and focus on producers from across Yorkshire and the North.

IDEAS FOR THE SUMMER HOLIDAYS

Summer 2023 has arrived, and the school holidays will be commencing soon. It may feel a little daunting for parents facing six weeks of entertaining children, in dare I mention, a cost of living crisis.

That being said, with a little organisation and planning and teamwork, holidays can be a time to create memories and to use the opportunity to learn and grow and appreciate all of the ways we can entertain and educate ourselves that are on our doorstep whether that be through nature, sport or educational centres.

In "Gods own County" we're spoilt for choice for things to do in nature. Over the summer holidays you could do the same walk numerous times but in a mindful way so perhaps having a focus on what comes into your awareness as sound - just noticing all the sounds in nature or the hustle and bustle of the town getting ready for a new day if you go out early in the morning.

Take the same walk and notice what you see, look down at the pavement, look up to the rooftops and become aware of what you've never noticed before as you bring focus to just one sense.

Now here's a challenge, how about taking a silent, mindful walk with friends. There's something rather magical being in others' presence but with permission to just "be" and not fill the silence with chatter.

There are many things to do which don't have to cost a lot, if anything. Become a spy on a special mission with family, friends or work colleagues with Beverley's Treasure Trail and take in the history of the 1300-year-old town. Going from the railway station via Beverley Minster and St Mary's church, you could finish the 2 hour trot with a picnic on the Westwood.

www.treasuretrails.co.uk/products/things-to-do-beverley-east-yorks

The holidays can be a time to challenge yourself and the family to do something different. Maybe you hated history at school but it could be something you find a new passion for by visiting one of the free museums by taking a short trip to Hull maybe by train and visiting the Hull and East Riding Museums Quarter - learn about William Wilberforce and the history of the abolishment of the slave trade or the Transport Museum.

If you fancy burning off some energy by running around straw bales and feeding the goats, take a trip up to Honeysuckle Farm on the outskirts of Hornsea where you can meet horses, donkeys, goats and feed the fish in the fish ponds and keep the cost down by taking your own picnic to one of the outdoor areas or there's an array of homemade delights in the café.

We're know for our thriftiness in Yorkshire so rather than buying high cost drinks, take a small bottle of concentrated cordial and most café's will be happy to fill up your water bottles.

Whether it's spending time in your own garden or local park or venturing to Filey, Bridlington, Robin Hood's Bay or perhaps for a walk along the limestone pavement at Malham Cove or a ride on the North Yorkshire Railway from Heartbeat's Goathland to Pickering, with maybe a detour to Dracula's landing spot at Whitby Abbey, have a wonderful Yorkshire summer.

Every week on a Monday evening, I run a free mindfulness session. These sessions present a wonderful opportunity to take time out for yourself. If you'd like to join, just drop me a message or give me a call on the details below.

For more information and details on further techniques including hypnotherapy, visit www.francesdunning.com or contact me, Fran Dunning on 07973 819867.

FANTASTIC FILMS AND WHERE TO FIND THEM

After a wee break, I am back to troll through the various streaming options now available to us to see some great movies. Although no actual theme this month, all our films have a flair for the dramatic in very different ways.

"You are here to translate" "Actually, I am here to interpret"

Normally when a film bypasses a cinema release, it means it isn't very good. However, there are some big exceptions to the rule. One of the latest anomalies is Guy Ritchie's The Covenant (available on Amazon Prime video) as it is more to do with the financial instability of the company that financed the production.

There is a stereotype that Mr Ritchie makes quirky gangland movies, but many forget that he made Robert Downey Jr. and Jude Law's Sherlock Holmes and Disney's live-action Aladdin. So it should be no surprise that The Covenant sees another departure for the director.

Set during the war in Afghanistan and although not a true story, it details a realistic relationship between soldier and interpreter and the tense situation those interpreters, and their families, faced when the American and British forces left the country.

Jake Gyllenhaal gives a great performance as Master Sergeant John Kinley but the absolute star of this film is Dar Salim as the Afghan interpreter who Kinley accepts into his squad with cool resignation. I don't wish to spoil how and why a bond is built between these two men but is a story of three distinct acts which are tense, emotional and not without action.

Ultimately, it is about one man's obsession to correct the broken promises of his country.

It feels a shame that such a film has flown under the radar as it could have been an award contender, especially for Salim but we can enjoy a great movie by an underrated British director.

"There are no two words in the English language more harmful than "good job!"

A film that did win a Best Supporting Actor Academy Award was Whiplash (currently available on ITVX).

The hugely talented J.K. Simmons is mesmerising as the bullying perfectionist instructor, Fletcher, in a music conservatoire. The film also won the Oscar for editing which is no surprise as although ostensibly drama, it plays out as much tension as a truly great thriller. I admit that when I first saw the film, I gasped and shouted at the screen as one scene unfolds. That does not happen often.

Miles Teller (who recently starred as Goose's son in Top Gun Maverick alongside Tom Cruise) stars as teenager Andrew Neiman, a talented jazz drumming protege who attends the musical college. He attracts the attention of the charismatic but terrifying Fletcher who runs the top competition band at the school.

What begins as a drive to elevate his student into the realms of perfection by any means necessary turns into a psychological battle between master and pupil where emotional boundaries are seriously breached and family relationships are devastated in the wake of personal ambitions.

It is a truly astonishing debut from writer/ director Damian Chazelle who went on to receive acclaim for La La Land (personally, I prefer Whiplash) and established him as a filmmaker to watch. If you like to be fully immersed in a film which will keep you not only guessing where it will go next, this is a great example.

For a film about the dark side of the quest for perfection, this is about as perfect a film as it gets.

"At some point, you gotta decide for yourself who you gonna be. Can't let nobody make that decision for you."

Speaking of La La Land, do you remember the debacle at the Academy Awards when it was Best Picture winner for a minute at the 2017 ceremony before it was discovered a mistake had been made? The film that really won, Moonlight can be seen on the BBC iplayer.

Despite the tough subject matter, it is a fragile and sympathetic film full of subtle moments as it follows a young African-American, Chiron, from his early years to manhood.

We witness the struggles to find his own identity and sexuality within a deprived area of Miami. His father is absent and his mother is hopelessly addicted to drugs (an Oscar-nominated performance from Naomi Harris in a role very different to Bond's Money Penny) but he finds kindness and mentorship from Juan.

This performance saw Mahershala Ali deservedly win the Best Supporting Actor Academy Award as although considerate towards Chiron, he is also fuelling the area's issues as the local drug dealer.

This might not be everybody's cup of tea as it is no action film but a character study and a moderately paced one at that. However, that is part of its power as you see the shades of grey in its main characters and brings a shaft of hope within such adversity.

"The management of this theatre suggests, for the greater entertainment of your friends, you will not divulge the secret of the ending of Witness for the Prosecution"

The Academy Awards appear to be evolving into a theme this month as the wildcard is a film that was nominated for five although never won.

Only in the last few years did I see Witness for the Prosecution (1957 - now available on Amazon Prime Video), a missing piece in my admiration of film director, Billy Wilder (Some Like it Hot, Double Indemnity). Finally catching up with the Agatha Christie adaptation not only met big expectations but exceeded them.

Tyrone Power and Marlene Dietrich may head the cast but the film belongs to Charles Laughton who brings humour and gravitas to the charismatic Sir Wilfred Roberts, a legendary barrister whose legal curiosity compels him to take on the case of an American (Power) charged with the murder of a wealthy widow.

As you expected from the source, the trial is full of twists and turns and a denouement that I could close but never was able to fully guess. There is some melodramatic acting of the time but much of it is essential to the plot (which I refuse to spoil here) and the drama is perfectly balanced with comedy in the wordy but glorious script.

Not to mention, the levity thanks to Laughton having a perfect foil in Elsa Lanchester (Laughton's real-life wife) as Robert's nurse whose rapport just sparkles in every scene together. If you have never seen the play or the film, this is definitely a rainy afternoon treat.

I hope you find something to tickle your cinematic taste buds for the month ahead (and that none of the above films disappear from their respective services - they do that sometimes). I will be back soon with some more recommendations.

Cliff Baillie.

ROAMING BEVERLEY'S REMNANTS

This leisurely stroll around the lesser-known fabric of our historic town, was inspired by the fabulous Remnants exhibition in the Guildhall.

ROUTE - Wednesday Market >> Tindall Lane >> Eastgate >> Flemingate >> Wilbert Grove >> School Lane >> Toll Gavel >> Saturday Market >> Wood Lane >> Westwood >> York Road >> Norwood >> Sow Hill >> Turners Yard >> Lairgate >> Champney Road >> Well Lane >> Wednesday Market.

It's around 2 miles, allow 90 minutes to 2 hours to enjoy.

Start your exploration at Wednesday Market, now a thriving place for diners, drinkers and shoppers. It was formerly the town fish market, appropriately Peck's fishmongers is housed in a quirky ancient building.

Head down the alley of Tindall Lane, by the side of the Queen's Head, the iron ring on the ground to your left is intriguing. I had walked down here countless times, before realising that the long brick wall to your right holds clear clues of its former use.

You can see the outline of bricked up doors and windows of what was a row of cottages, indeed the 1861 Census shows that 72 people resided here.

300 yards down on your right is a lovely old petrol pump of the 1920's from the former garage. Next to it, is a re-set medieval doorway from the Dominican Friary over the road, which you pass as you head for the pedestrian bridge over the railway - you might prefer to take the flat route, via the level crossing by the Lord Nelson pub.

This area was the domain of the Dominican monks until the dissolution of the monasteries in the 1530s. I see this an act of unspeakable cultural vandalism by Henry VIII, at least Beverley kept some of its monastic heritage.

Pass through the gap by the cinema and college, here is the great surprise of a huge stretch of medieval wall that forms the lower courses of the modern college. It's the boundary wall of the friary precinct, I was totally unaware it existed until the exhibition flagged it up.

Head to the railway station, built in 1846 over a former plague pit and once the site of another monastic building, that of the mysterious Knights Hospitallers. My garden is nearby, and I have in it a large carved stone, which I believe was once part of the Hospitaller's building.

Cross Railway Terrace by the car park, into Wilbert Grove, on your right the large multi-storey building now used by church youth groups, was part of a carriage works in the nineteenth century.

Head into town over the pelican crossing on New Walkergate. To your right by the car park is School Lane, as it formerly lead to Spencer's School that closed in 1967.

Ahead of you, across Walkergate, is Golden Ball Passage, marking the location of a once popular pub.

Friary Precinct Wall

It enters Toll Gavel, facing you on the doorcase of a mobile phone store, are the lovely twisted snakes that were used as an emblem by chemists, a reference to the Greek God of medicine, Asclepius, who was served by snakes.

Go right into Saturday Market, at the far end, above Beercock's estate agent, you may be able to make out 'ghost signs' of former occupants.

Cross the pelican, turning left into Wood Lane, noting the stone protectors to prevent damage to the brickwork. Go up the lane and into lovely treelined Woodlands, to reach the gate onto the Westwood, passing the striking entrance, with its prominent head, to what was Beverley's workhouse then hospital.

The Westwood area holds lots of historic evidence over many centuries, here we seek out remains from the Second World War. Firstly, there is the surprising concrete base and pin of a mortar, seen on the edge of Newbegin pits, just before the road.

You can then walk over the pasture, full of skylarks in summer, to the Black Mill. On the south side is the only remaining anti-aircraft concrete post, there were many here to deter Luftwaffe landings. Head down to York Road, following the pavement into town by the lodge, and over in the stock yard is the amazingly intact communal air raid shelter, the only one left of the town's 26.

We are heading next to Norwood, a nice route, passing through North Bar, to St Marys and along Hengate. At the east end of the church yard is a fascinating medieval brick wall, it looks similar to those used on North Bar erected in 1409, and has an odd bricked-up doorway.

Mortar Base

Cross the busy road junction. On your left is the beautiful Georgian Norwood House. On the gate piers are intriguing metal brackets, which once held a metal bar used to prevent straying livestock, when the nearby cattle market was in use.

Return to Saturday Market via Sow Hill, head onto Lairgate through Turners Yard. This too has indications of the homes that once existed.

Turn left up Lairgate, by the zebra, and again surprising remains of a former theatre, the pay box window still exists.

Go down Champney Road, on the left is a decidedly odd medieval turret. This was once part of St Mary's Church.

You can head back to your starting point via Well Lane, which also has stone protectors, as it enters Butcher Row. I have lived in Beverley for 33 years, but have only discovered many of the architectural remnants on this walk, very recently.

"The human foot is a masterpiece of engineering and a work of art"...
Leonardo da Vinci.

My occupation as a Podiatrist has given me the opportunity to work with many pairs of feet over my 21 years working in this interesting career. Our feet really are a masterpiece of human engineering and an important part of the human anatomy.

We use our feet for movement and performing physical activities. Our feet allow our bodies to remain in an upright position as well as absorbing shock. The average person will walk 75,000 miles in their lifetime, the equivalent of travelling around the world 3 times.

Podiatrists are regulated professionals and trained in assessing, diagnosing and treating conditions, injuries, diseases and traumas of the foot and lower limb.

Podiatrists also prevent, manage and correct foot irregularities, relieve pain, treat infection and keep people of all ages mobile and active.

Podiatrists (also known as Chiropodists) are regulated by the Health and Care Professions Council (HCPC).

I offer a home visiting service in the Beverley area and beyond. Please contact me for more information and friendly advice.

SHANE ASKS, DID YOU KNOW? A BRIEF HISTORY OF CURRY

Curry is a firm favourite in many households around the U.K. At the mild side, we have the korma for those who don't like spicy curry and over at the very spicy side, we have the vindaloo. But where does the term curry come from? And how have we come to have so many varieties of curry that we see on our menus today.

First of all, the word 'curry' is actually derived from the word we know to be 'gravy'. During the 18th century, lots of Indian dishes were altered to suit British people living in India. The dishes were spiced with a thick sauce (gravy) and were given the generic name - 'curry'. The spices used in each dish denoted the particular variety of curry that was served. During the 18th and 19th century, many British people living and working in India had chefs who would routinely cook Indian dishes that the workers missed once they returned home. Many Indian chefs were encouraged to settle in Britain, where traditional Indian cuisine was once again adapted for British taste buds.

Indian chefs had a 'base gravy' which consisted of a mix of herbs, spices and basic vegetables such as: celery, carrots and onions. This was to save time cooking out the spices. Once this gravy was ready, many different flavours derived from specific spices and herbs (and other key ingredients such as meat and other vegetables) were added and formed the curries we now see today. Over the years certain curries became popular, including: madras, vindaloo, jalfrezi, dopiaza, korma and Britain's favourite - Tikka Masala. Interestingly, the Tikka Masala (which was developed in Britain during the 1970s) is shrouded in myth and mystery. As the story goes, a patron of a British Indian restaurant ordered chicken tikka and asked the chef for gravy as the chicken was a little dry. The chef opened a tin of condensed tomato soup, added a special blend of his own spices and created masala sauce.

However... as the real story goes, the chef returned to his kitchen and used his Indian recipe base gravy but had invented the story to protect his secret recipe. And so, despite its true origins, the Tikka Masala was born!

The Balti curry is thought to have been developed in Birmingham in the 1970s by Pakistani chefs who also experimented with flavours to appeal to westerners in Britain. The term Balti is derived from the urdu word - 'balty' the 'bucket' that the curry is cooked in. This curry is unique as it refers to the method of cooking rather than the spices that are used.

It seems, there is more to curry than we might think! And every curry tells a different story, which has roots in India, Britain and other countries around the world as different ingredients were traded as far back as the 15th century, meaning that flavours changed all the time. Although fish and chips remain a firm favourite for many of us of course, the curry is not far behind! In fact some people ask for Curry Sauce to pour over the Fish. How do you like yours?

THE VALUE OF A CYCLE HELMET

At Wilson Wheels they understand the importance of a good cycle helmet. It is important that cyclists of all ages understand this too.

Cycle helmets play a crucial role in ensuring the safety and well-being of cyclists allowing them the confidence to cycle with safety.

Cycle helmets provide essential protection to the head, reducing the risk of severe head injuries in the event of a fall or collision. The skull is vulnerable to fractures and traumatic brain injuries, which can have long-lasting consequences. Wearing a correctly fitting and secure cycling helmet significantly reduces the impact and distributes the force of an impact, reducing the chances of severe injury.

Cycle helmets act as a visible safety measure, which encourages other road users to be more cautious and considerate when sharing the road with cyclists. They serve as a visual reminder of the vulnerability of cyclists. Helmets promote a culture of safety and responsibility, setting an example for other cyclists, particularly children and young riders. By wearing helmets consistently, cyclists demonstrate the importance of protecting oneself and encourage others to adopt safe cycling practices.

By wearing a correctly fitting cycle helmet assists in safeguarding cyclists' heads, increasing visibility, promoting road safety, and setting a positive example for others. Wearing a cycle helmet should be a habit for all cyclists, regardless of their skill level or the distance they intend to ride. Cycle Helmets Save Lives.

CARFAN - THE JAGUAR 420G

There is a lot of metal in the subject of this month's column so a very large parking space indeed is needed as it's a Jaguar 420G.

The "G" stands for Grand and it certainly is, in every sense of the word. It has been in the same family since new in 1970 which is unusual nowadays, having been left in the will of the current owner's father, whose initials are on the registration number, which is a nice personal touch.

Adding only around 1300 miles a year to the odometer, it might be a surprise to discover that although the vehicle cost £2300 new, it is currently insured for £42,000 and having leafed through a comprehensive file showing its lengthy restoration, it certainly makes for interesting reading.

The engine is the same as found in an E-type Jaguar so it's no slouch at the traffic lights and may well surprise other road users. Two engine sizes were offered - 3.8 and 4.2 litres between 1966 and 1971 with the car being a cosmetic improvement over the previous Mk X before itself being replaced by the popular and very long lasting XJ6.

With such a big and heavy car be prepared to spend a lot of time at petrol stations if it is used as it was designed to be with around 15 miles per gallon to be expected. One perhaps surprising option at the time was air conditioning, something taken for granted today but rare in the late 60s. Parts are easy to obtain through a Jaguar enthusiast magazine and an internet search will show many pictures of the restoration and some of the many parts that were needed.

So don't forget, if you see a 420G purring past, don't forget that cheery Carfan wave!

COUNTRYSIDE MATTERS WITH SAM WALTON

You may have noticed on your travels that sheep look different now having been clipped or in other words had their wool sheared off.

Most of my relatives on the Walton side of the family are sheep farmers up in Northumberland and Cumberland. Hill farming up there has fewer alternatives than we have on the arable side, so it is either sheep or beef.

For whatever reason, these last few years have seen a huge change in the wool market and as once upon a time, they actually got paid more for the fleece than it cost them to clip the sheep.

As some of you may know, gangs of shearers, some from Oz and others from New Zealand come over here and travel the country in gangs to clip the wool from the various breeds of sheep we have, and it is quite extraordinary how the fleece differs from breed to breed.

For whatever reason, the last few years sheep farmers have been losing money, as the price for wool has dropped. One of my cousins actually dug a hole in one of his fields and buried it as that was cheaper than paying to have it taken away!

I know that there is interest in using wool as insulation in buildings and it is very good for that, so with all the house building going on literally everywhere, I hope the powers that be might take a close look at what wool has to offer.

What made me think of this was reading about something called Sustainable Rope, a firm which has seen the light and are producing rope fabric along with other products such as dog leads, sheep halters, and horse lead reins, all made with traceable British wool.

It would appear that there are many other possibilities, to replace plastic so perhaps my cousins might now get paid again for their wool instead of having to pay to have it taken away!

ALL IN A DAYS BARK FOR EVERYTHING BUT THE DOG

When the 5th Beverley Brownie Group approached local business owner, Andrea Milner to see if she could help, it was all in a day's work.

The Brownies are working hard for their Job Interest Badge, and had highlighted that they would love to understand more about jobs involving working with dogs.

So when Brownie Unit Leader, Anne Marie Smith approached Everything But The Dog, they were delighted with the result. Andrea attended a Tuesday night meeting together with Coopa, her chocolate brown Cockapoo and Poppy who helps out by walking Coopa on a daily basis.

With clippers, scissors and tick removers to hand, the Brownies started to understand the process of dog grooming and how important it is to ensure pups stay happy in the sunshine.

At the end of the session, all of the Brownies enjoyed a stroke and fuss of Coopa, who was extremely well behaved and patient, but of course loved all the attention.

The Brownies showed their thanks and appreciation with a beautiful hand made card that melts the hearts of all that see it...

BEVERLEY GOLFERS OUTSHINE RORY!!

On Thursday 22nd June, Rory McIlroy had his first hole-in-one on the PGA Tour. It was on the 214 yard par 3 8th at the Travellers Championship at TPC River Highlands in Cromwell Connecticut. Rory has played over 3000 par threes on the PGA Tour, so that goes to show how rare these feats are.

Despite them being so rare, we've seen three holes-in-one in just over a week at Beverley and East Riding Golf Club! The first was by long-time member, Keith Jones, on 9th June at the 179-yards 8th hole. Then, on 17th June past Captain Jeff Worrall had a hole-in-one on the same hole. The following day, Gaz Clayton sank his tee shot on the 185-yards 4th for the hat-trick of aces.

Keith Jones

So it's been a very good week for Keith, Jeff and Gaz, and it's also been a very good week for the other members, who have enjoyed the traditional free drinks the trio have provided.

Beverley golfers - the challenge is on for that elusive Hole in One. Congratulations to the trio, we look forward to more stories from the Westwood Course.

BEVERLEY AC - KEEP ON RUNNING - WITH FANTASTIC ACHIEVEMENTS

Beverley AC have been busy. 15 teams took part in the 80-mile 10 stage Wolds Way Relay Challenge, which was organised by the Club.

Teams of 10 runners tackled the Wolds Way from Filey to Hessle. Congratulations go to City of Hull AC men's team - "A Hull of a team" - for smashing the course record by over an hour and finishing in an impressive time of 8:41:45! In fact, the first 3 teams to finish were all back under the previous best time.

Organiser, Andy Tate, commented: "I would like to thank all the Team Captains for dealing with the huge logistical challenge and for the support given throughout the route and to all the runners who helped make this event a fantastic success. We are delighted to donate £150 from the entry fees to help fund the upkeep and improvements along the Yorkshire Wolds Way."

Beverley AC members entered in a range of other events, from 10kms to long distance triathlons. With 10kms races being popular, the Club was represented in races in Grimsby, Hull and as far away as the Great Ocean Road marathon in Australia. Beverley AC members, Aidy Messingham and Niki Whitaker, took on the unique challenge of triathlon at the European Triathlon Championships in Madrid.

Aidy also completed Ironman Lanzarote in an impressive time of 11:57:03, whilst at the East Yorkshire Sprint triathlon Niki Whitaker finished 3rd overall and 1st female and Ivon Richmond finished 4th overall and 1st male veteran.

The Club is delighted to report on its successful introduction to the very first 5K210K progression group. The group's coach, Paul Readshaw, started the training programme to take runners from 5k to 10k, with 7 members signed up and attending the first session which took place at the beginning of June. The Club was delighted to present a cheque for £3238.48 to last year's nominated Club charity, Dove House Hospice.

Following the success of the Beverley 10kms and the fun run events, where both male and female course records were broken, Della Hatfield this year's female winner commented: "I just wanted to thank you for the card and letter you sent for breaking the ladies course record at Beverley 10k. The race was, as always, superbly organised and the adulation of the crowds was incredible. I was born at the Westwood Hospital and have a wealth of family connections to Beverley. I would like to share with you how much achieving this course record meant to me.

"The Mill on the Westwood was once owned and worked by my ancestors - the famous painting "the cowshed" was my Great Aunt Sis working in the Mill on the Westwood. My Great-Great Grandad was Albert Sellers whose memorial cup at the BDRS in the Minster is still handed out today! My Grandparents trained and raced horses on the racecourse/track, so much so that a memorial handicap was named after my Grandad at Beverley races, "The Don & Raymond Gibbon Memorial Handicap".

"My mother grew up in Beverley, she married my father at the Minster, and I have many childhood memories of playing in my Great Grandparents garden that backed on to the Westwood, or as I called it, as a child "The Secret Garden". It was immensely special for me to achieve the course record in a course where I have strong family connections and many fond memories."

The next important date in the calendar is the Walkington 10kms and Fun Run on Friday 14th July 2023. Places are still available.

New members, whatever your age and fitness level, are always welcome and further details can be found on the Club's website: www.beverleyathleticclub.co.uk

The final showcase will shine a light on your new skills when you create the 'magic' during a professional public performance.
